

Pass Travel Update

The Company has just updated information on pass travel effective in a few hours. If you need to be back for work, please consider returning sooner than later. Although there may not be restrictions on using partner airlines, if you consider the traveling public may also be jumping ship, please allow yourself multiple options up to and including revenue travel. At the end of the day, pass travel is a privilege so the strike will not be an excuse if you are unable to return.

Furthermore, in the coming day or two, you may also see the Company try to repatriate assets (aircraft) so they do not get stranded on foreign soil. Please keep this in mind as well.

Refer to Aeronet for details/updates.

Unifor Local 2002 Stands in Solidarity with CUPE Air Canada Flight Attendants

Earlier this afternoon, Tammy Moore, president of Local 2002 issued the following:

Unifor Local 2002 proudly stands with our sisters, brothers, and friends at CUPE – Air Canada Component, as they continue their fight for a fair contract.

Flight attendants have made it clear—their top issue is fair compensation. For far too long, these dedicated aviation professionals have been expected to work without pay for significant portions of their duties. This is unacceptable in any workplace, and it's why CUPE has been pushing back through its Unpaid Work Won't Fly campaign since December 2024.

Air Canada flight attendants deserve wages that reflect the critical role they play in keeping passengers safe and comfortable, and they deserve to be paid for all the work they do – both in the air and on the ground.

Unifor Local 2002 supports their call for an agreement that ends unpaid work, improves working conditions, and recognizes the professionalism and dedication that flight attendants bring to our industry every single day.

Solidarity is our greatest strength – and we will continue to stand shoulder to shoulder with CUPE members until they achieve the fair deal they deserve.

In Solidarity,

Tammy Moore
President, Unifor Local 2002
